

BHM Capital Strengthens Its Presence at the University of Sharjah Career Fair, Opening New Career Horizons for Students and Graduates

United Arab Emirates, Dubai, May 9, 2025:

As part of its ongoing commitment to supporting young national talents and strengthening its presence within the academic and professional landscape of the UAE, BHM Capital, the leading financial institution in the capital markets of the United Arab Emirates, participated in the University of Sharjah Career Fair, held on Tuesday, April 22 at the university's main campus. This participation aligns with the company's broader strategy to foster strong connections with university students and recent graduates, offering them meaningful access to career pathways within the financial sector.

The event witnessed strong engagement from students and graduates seeking promising career paths, with BHM Capital's booth attracting a large number of visitors interested in learning about the nature of work within the financial services industry and exploring available career opportunities in this dynamic field.

Representing the company was Mr. Tarek Mousa, the HR & Administration Director, along with his team, who provided comprehensive insights into BHM Capital's work environment, outlined available vacancies and required specializations, and offered one-on-one career consultations. These sessions included advice on CV preparation, interview readiness, and choosing the right career path in line with the evolving financial market landscape.

Commenting on the company's participation, Abdel Hadi Al Sa'di, Chief Executive Officer of BHM Capital, stated:

"Our participation in this fair reflects our firm commitment to supporting students and graduates, and to fostering collaboration with leading academic institutions such as the University of Sharjah, with whom we are proud to maintain a continuous partnership. We firmly believe that true investment lies not only in technology or markets but also in nurturing young minds who possess the passion for learning and the spirit of innovation."

He added:

"The financial services sector in the UAE holds immense potential for growth and requires qualified human capital capable of adapting to market shifts, embracing innovation, and performing efficiently across multidisciplinary environments. Our role as a leading company extends beyond offering financial services to actively contributing to preparing the next generation of financial leaders who will drive the sector's future."

During the fair, BHM Capital's HR team showcased the company's initiatives in training and development, including specialized internship programs for university students and virtual trading rooms established in collaboration with several academic institutions. These initiatives aim to enable students to simulate real-market environments and apply theoretical concepts in practical contexts.

Many students expressed their appreciation for the guidance and practical advice provided by the HR team, praising the value of the information shared during their direct interactions.

This annual participation is part of BHM Capital's broader program aimed at investing in human capital, in line with its corporate social responsibility and its vision to contribute to building a sustainable knowledge-based economy.

The company continues to develop innovative training platforms, organize professional development programs, and support employment pathways for students and graduates across the UAE and the region.
